

Abstract:

This Minisymposium is devoted to recent developments in global analysis and differential geometry as well as to the interactions between these fields and their application to problems of mathematical physics.