

Jürgen Kurths (Potsdam Institute for Climate Impact Research & HU Berlin):

Some Aspects of Complex Network Approach in Social Sciences

Abstract:

Complex networks approaches, originally developed in social sciences, have been strongly developed recently. They have been successfully applied to a variety of fields from biology and chemistry, via engineering to social sciences and economy. I will show their potential for two problems in social sciences: understanding of system crash of social networks and social dilemma experiments.

References:

Y. Yu, G. Xiao, J. Zhou, Z. Weng, J. Kurths, H.J. Schellnhuber, PNAS (2016)

Z. Wang, M. Jusup, R. Wang, L. Shi, Y. Iwasa, Y. Moreno, J. Kurths, Science Advance 3, e1601444 (2017)